The National Directory of Internships

- Hundreds of opportunities. 1's. for college, graduate and high school students, as well as for people who are not in school.
- At least 1,000 opportunities are available, with companies and organizations in all parts of the country.
- A special section on international internships offers opportunities in countries around the world.
- A comprehensive guide to interviewing and job searching strategies.

Chapters:

- The Arts
- Business and Industry
- Clearinghouses
- Communications
- Consumer Affairs
- Education
- Environment
- Government (Local, State, and Federal)
- Health
- Human Services
- International Affairs
- Museums and History
- Public Interest
- Recreation
- Sciences
- Women’s Issues
- Resources for International Internships

"This directory is the best source of internship information for students. They can use it to find a specific internship or create one on their own by seeing what interns can do and what organizations seek. I also recommend THE EXPERIENCED HAND as a companion resource."

—James Rankin
Assistant Vice President, for Employer Relations and Career Services
American Graduate School of International Management
Other Publications by NSIEE

Please indicate quantity ordered in the boxes below. Complete the form on the reverse side. Return entire brochure with your order to NSIEE, 3509 Howe Drive, Suite 207, Raleigh, NC 27609-7229.

The Experienced Hand: A Student Manual for Making the Most of an Internship by Timothy K. Sutton and Kamal Ali. A companion volume to The National Directory of Internships, it contains issues to consider before interning, how to find or create an internship, how to apply for an internship, and how to make the internship a valuable work and learning experience. 96 pp., $12.95 ($8.55 NSIEE members).

Combining Service and Learning: A Resource Book for Community and Public Service edited by Jane C. Kendall. Published by NSIEE with 93 other national and regional organizations. For faculty, administrators, policymakers, and students in colleges and universities and K-12 schools; leaders in government, community, or corporate settings; lawmakers; foundations; and others interested in community and public service, youth service, volunteerism, leadership, civic awareness, or cross-cultural learning. (Take 15% off if ordering all 3 volumes at same time; 10% if ordering 2 volumes.)

Volume I – Principles of good practice: national and international models; policy and institutional issues plus strategies for gaining support; education for civic and social responsibility, cross-cultural awareness, and intellectual, moral, ethical, and leadership development. 523 pp., $54 ($38 for members of Cooperating Organizations, $32 NSIEE members).

Volume II – Practical issues and ideas for programs and courses — integration into the curriculum, recruitment, orientation, supervision, evaluation, school/community relations, legal issues, monitoring and assessing both service and learning outcomes. 228 pp., $54 ($38 for members of Cooperating Organizations, $32 NSIEE members).

Volume III – An annotated bibliography of the literature from the past three decades. Edited by Janet Lucas with Jennifer Anderson, Jane Perman, Rob Shuman, Timothy Sutton, Sally Mighello. 81 pp., $15 ($13 for members of Cooperating Organizations, $10 NSIEE members).

Community Service as Values Education edited by Cecilia Delve, Suzanne Mintz, and Greg Stewart. Addresses how service-learning programs can foster students’ moral development and sense of civic responsibility. From the “New Directions for Student Service” series by Jossey-Bass, Inc. 130 pp., $13.50 ($10.50 members).

Strengthening Experiential Education Within Your Institution by Jane C. Kendall, John S. Daley, Thomas C. Little, Jane S. Perman, and Sharon G. Rubin. A sourcebook for college and university faculty and administrators who want to help their institutions tap the full potential of experiential education. Includes chapters on integrating experiential learning into the institution’s mission, curriculum, faculty roles, evaluation system, administrative and financial structures. 154 pp., $25 ($17 members).

Preparing Humanists for Work: A National Study of Undergraduate Internships in the Humanities by Conna G. Kastor with James M. Heffernan, The Washington Center, sponsored by the National Endowment for the Humanities. Results and analysis of a major national study of internship programs offered by humanities departments across the country. 99 pp., $15 ($8 members).